Parents struggling to understand their children's behavior now have a guide in Susan Crook's new award winning book. This Olathe mother of three is a Certified Human Behavior Consultant with a Master's Degree in Communication who helps parents identify and assess their own personality types along with those of their children. Parents are better equipped to understand and anticipate behaviors, enabling them to effectively motivate and discipline.

Humorous anecdotes, graphics, and charts will help moms with children of all ages learn how to replace power struggles, unrealistic expectations, and rebellion with improved parent-child relationships.

Crook helps you determine the personality styles of your children. After all of this information is gathered she explains which style of parenting works best for which personality styles.

Susan enjoys sharing this most helpful information with parents through her book as well as through a busy speaking engagement schedule with parent groups all over the country.
